

Qualified to teach or train in the third sector?

If this is you:

- I am a qualified teacher/trainer/tutor
- I work for a third sector organisation (voluntary, community or charity) in England funded by the Learning and Skills Council (directly or by sub-contract to another LSC funded provider).
- I achieved my initial teacher/trainer/tutor (ITT) qualification before September 2007

then the Tariff of Qualifications (ITT) is for you.

The Tariff can show you how your qualification maps to the three new qualifications: PTTLS/CTLLS/DTLLS introduced by recent reforms in further education. The Tariff can help you start at the appropriate point as you plan your continuing development to meet your professional needs and contractual obligations.

Standards  Verification UK

Save yourself hours of retraining
Go to: www.tariff.svuk.eu

Working towards professional status?

Standards Verification UK can help you here too!

The recent reforms to the further education/learning and skills sector have brought in changes to enable all teachers/trainers/tutors delivering learning in the further education sector to achieve professional status by gaining a licence to practise in recognition of their professionalism. A mandatory element of the process for gaining a licence is evidencing your personal literacy and numeracy skills to a minimum of level 2.

Standards Verification UK hosts the lists of approved qualifications for evidencing your literacy and numeracy skills.

Check if yours are eligible at:

<http://www.standardsverificationuk.org/2924.htm>

The Institute for Learning is the professional body for further education in England which confers the licence to practise via professional formation, the process by which tutors can gain professional status. Further information is available at:

www.ifl.ac.uk

Standards Verification UK

Skills for Learning Professionals